

Good Day!
Want to know more about the Technical Program at the 2010 Joint Annual Conference?

By clicking this link: Technical Program you will be directed to a file that contains an overview of the program, information about the speakers, and each of the presentation abstracts.

The file you will be connected to is an excel spreadsheet that provides an overview of the program on the first tab and all of the presentation details on the second. As you view the first page, all you need to do is click on the box of the presentation you would like to know more about and it will link to that information on the second page. To go back to the program, click the furthest left column and the links will toggle you back and forth between the Program and Presentation Details.

You can simply print any of the individual presentation details by printing the “page” you are on. That page number is in dark gray letters in the row of the Presentation Details. We have not printed these items in the conference program handed out at the conference specifically to conserve paper and avoid unnecessary waste.

Feel free to download this file and use it how you would like. The file will also be available at the Annual Conference at a complimentary computer kiosk that will have free internet access and this file for your use.

Should you have any questions please email Greg Woodward at greg.woodward@stantec.com.
